roberto giacomucci

The Aragonia by Futility Collection has been entrusted to the expertise of the architect Roberto Giacomucci. He is a “design craftsman” who has been able to coherently shape this material to transform it into functional design objects, taking advantage of his considerable experience in eco-sustainable materials such as Green cast®. A craftsman who breathes Design as a lifestyle, in order to better manage spaces, techniques, materials. And in this way he himself understands the true soul of the material to be molded, managing to transform it even more effectively. With the same personal ability of artistic elaboration, Giacomucci characterized the decoration of Aragonia, inspiring himself with the decorative motif of the cathedrals of Aragonia (Zaragoza), the Spanish city which, also thanks to the beauty of its leaded stained glass windows, has become famous in the world.

Futility design exploration designs rational, original and always innovative domestic elements.

For Futility, the designer creates new, efficient experiences linked to the user's imagination.

The goal is to want to revolutionize the logic of mass production, combining good design, functionality and that touch of inventiveness.

Futility presents Aragonia, curated by architect Roberto Giacomucci and made entirely with Green Cast®, a versatile and sustainable material which is also sensitive to the environmental issue, precisely because of its durable function.
